reputation of our code. Our forwards gave probably their weakest exhibition of the season, and our backs, as a division, were uneven in both attack and defence. The early injury to Harry Jones—he was off most of the game—disorganised our third line, and with Carr and Bowkett taking a well-earned rest, the re-arrangement of our forces did not make for best results.

Collins, the ex-Hull centre—played a fine game for the losers, particularly in the second half, when he scored two tries.

At Craven Park.

With a view to infusing more life into our pack we re-introduced Dyson in the front row along with H. Sherwood, while Moulding, a second row forward who had been shaping well with the Reserves, was given his first opportunity in the premier team.

The new comers tried hard throughout but were no match for the Rovers more experienced and better organised six, and in consequence we were badly beaten in the pack. We still have confidence, ence, based upon the weekly reports of the work of our Reserve team forwards, that in time the material will develop, and when favourable opportunity arises we shall not hesitate to give further trials.

Our backs were again weak in places and to make matters worse were unfairly handicapped throughout by obstructive tactics employed against Mills in particular. Many times he (Mills) was deliberately obstructed and sometimes actually tackled when attempting to link up with his centre, or to otherwise reach the ball. In consequence he was practically placed out of the game. The few penalties imposed absolutely failed to check the glaring misdemeanour. Even many of the 'home' spectators called upon the player most guilty to 'play the game.' So long as tactics of this nature are persisted in, so long will all attempts to bring out the finer points of our code prove well nigh impossible.

In the end we were defeated by 31 points to 7, the biggest beating we have sustained for many a long day. One feature of the Rovers play certainly deserves favourable comment, and could be very well copied by our own side. We refer to the splendid backing up afforded the man with the ball, and also the parting with the ball, at the right time, by a player who was about to be brought to the ground. We have emphasised this feature week after week and would like to see our team make it one of careful study and exploitation from to-day onward.

To-day's Attraction.

The Leeds match is always eagerly anticipated at Fartown, and now that the Headingley side are holders of the Yorkshire Cup, their appearance among us, fresh from their recent success, is all the more interesting. Given anything like a decent day we should see a fine exploitation of the Rugby League code. Like our own team, the visiting side try to make attack their chief fort, and prefer progress by running and passing rather than kicking. Although not yet in the 'first four'—due to early season set backs—Leeds are fully expected to gain admission to the 'charmed circle' ere long. Of all other Yorkshire teams still outside, Thompson and his colleagues appear most likely to get there.

We expect every man in our team to make a special effort to retrieve the fortunes of 'Fartown' by gaining a great victory to-day. Much depends upon our forwards and we hope all the six will show their best form of the season. If that happens, we believe our backs capable of more than holding their own against Moores & Co., though we readily acknowledge the fine talent possessed by Leeds behind the pack.

Our Reserves are due at Headingley this afternoon for a Senior Competition match with Leeds. The success of our men at the expense of the 'Robins' Reserves at Fartown last week-end (11-0) was made easier to accomplish by reason of the opposition turning up a man short, while our pack, which included Rudd, Morton, Tiffany and Baxter, had matters their own way throughout.
